Objectives

A majority of Health care professionals, particularly in the academic stream, undertake research, for which a basic training in Ethics of Medical research is relevant. This workshop aims to provide a working knowledge of the ethical issues involved when research is conducted in human subjects, who may be healthy volunteers or patients.

Through case scenarios and hands on group tasks, the delegates will be introduced to the tenets of Bioethics including the Nuremberg code, Helsinki Declaration and ICMR Guidelines for Biomedical Research on Human Participants.
