2. AIIMS Bhopal - World Blood Donor Day (WBDD)

14th June is celebrated as the World Blood Donor Day (WBDD) as this date is the birth anniversary of Mr. Karl Landsteiner. He discovered the blood groups (A, B, AB) for which he was awarded the Nobel prize.

World Health Organization (WHO) decided to commemorate this day as the World Blood Donor Day (WBDD) from 2004 to recognize the selfless efforts of blood donors who donate the precious and life giving blood. This saves the lives of many patients all over the world.

This year of 2020 has gained special significance because of the pandemic of COVID19

We at AIIMS Bhopal have set up specific steps to maintain social distance, sanitization avoiding crowding and minimizing personal interaction. We have taken precautions to protect our donors as well as our health care personnel working in the blood bank. Our blood donors have responded to the need of the blood bank of AIIMS Bhopal since March 2020. On behalf of AIIMS Bhopal, we wish that all of us stay healthy and continue to support our society by donating blood especially during these trying times. We encourage blood donors to come to the blood bank at AIIMS Bhopal and donate blood.
